Contemporary art now fills a 200-year-old Jew Town house.

ABOUT

Kashi Hallegua House is an art gallery in a house more than 200 years old, on Synagogue Road in Jew Town, Mattancherry. Mattancherry was once home to many Jewish families, and the house counts among the major heritage landmarks of Kochi. The house is the venue, so its rooms are the galleries. Check what is on before you walk over, because each show here has its own run of dates. The building is treated as part of each show rather than a neutral backdrop.
