Chellanam Beach Kochi

A wall of tetrapods shows the scale of the coastal erosion here.

ADDRESS

ABOUT

Chellanam Beach is a working fishing coast on the sea south of Kochi, where a seawall now stands between the waves and the village. The wall is just over seven kilometres long and is built from granite and concrete tetrapods at a cost of ₹344 crore. The Pallithode-Chellanam-Kochi Beach Road runs through the village. It is listed as open from 9am to 5pm every day. The seawall is also a walkway, so you can walk its length above the water. It is the longest coastal protection work in Keralam.
