ABOUT

Dutch Cemetery Road leads to the Dutch Cemetery in Fort Kochi, a burial ground near the seafront, a short walk from St Francis Church. The cemetery holds 104 tombs and epitaphs, many cut from granite and local laterite, with inscriptions from the Dutch and later British communities of Fort Kochi. The oldest dated Dutch monument here is the grave of Johan Daimichen, who lived from 1728 to 1784. After the British took the town in 1795 it went on taking European burials.
